American Hooked Rug #20139

Description

Not the usual Log Cabin pattern, but an array of squares, each with a diagonally positioned “lollipop” or “finger”, all set within a broad court-martialed border. The squares constantly change color combinations, depending on the fabric fragments available. Although detail tones include black, dark blue and red, the general effect is light, with no formal arrangement to the squares. Rare size for a hooked rug.
