Early 19th Century Joshaqn Carpet

Description

We have, for conveniencea€™s sake, grouped other, comparable Southwest Persian weaving with the Ghashgaie. This early piece, c. 1800, represents high quality tribal work does in the urban style. The perfectly balanced herati pattern on a deep blue ground is framed by a red quatrefoil rosette and thin leaf pattern. The pile is low, the weave is very fine on this important survivor from as virtually unknown period of Persian rug weaving.
